

Gonzague ISIRABAHENDA is a Ph.D. candidate in sociology studies at Babes-Bolyai University of Cluj-Napoca/Romania (BBU). My research focuses on the transition from university to work, graduate employability, skills, and underemployment. Subjects related to the career of young university graduates in precarious jobs also attract my attention as they pertain to inquiries on the sociology of work and employment. He has authored various publications on the issue facing young people. He worked as a research assistant at the Faculty of Sociology and Social Work, Babeş-Bolyai University, in the project 'OVERED: University-to-work transition. A qualitative inquiry on over-qualification among Romanian youth.' He is collaborating with international think tanks and NGOs, including the European Commission and the Council of Europe in the field of youth, the Global Social Service Workforce Alliance, the British Sociological Association (BSA), the Society for Research into Higher Education (SRHE) and the International Federation of Social Workers (IFSW).
